L.A. Art Show finds new home

The Los Angeles Art Show -- an annual commercial art fair that has moved from the Pasadena Civic Center to UCLA to Santa Monica's Barker Hanger -- has a new home at the Los Angeles Convention Center.

Scheduled to appear there Jan. 21-25, 2009, the 14-year-old fair will feature 175 exhibitors with a wide range of artworks, a film series and discussions with artists, curators and collectors.

The fair's organizers also have joined forces with the Los Angeles Fine Print Fair, which will present its 24th annual edition at the Convention Center in the same time slot.
