LA Art Show 2025: A Global Perspective from London to Aspen to Miami

As the LA Art Show approaches its milestone 30th edition, set for February 19-23, 2025, at the Los Angeles Convention Center, the show continues to evolve as a cornerstone of the Los Angeles art calendar. Under the guidance of producer/director, Kassandra Voyagis, this anniversary celebration promises to showcase an unparalleled diversity of artistic voices from around the world.

In this newsletter, we turn our focus to three galleries that highlight the show's commitment to presenting a rich tapestry of international art. Columbia Road Gallery from London, UK, brings the pulse of East London's vibrant art scene. Casterline|Goodman Gallery of Aspen, Colorado, offers a blend of fine art and expert advisory services. From Miami, Florida, Coral Contemporary Gallery showcases the dynamism of Latin American contemporary art.

Each of these galleries contributes to the LA Art Show's mission of creating a dynamic platform where established traditions meet emerging trends, and where art enthusiasts can engage with works that challenge, inspire, and redefine contemporary artistic expression. Read on to learn more about this month's featured galleries...

Gallery Highlights

Columbia Road Gallery, London

Established in 2005, Columbia Road Gallery has become a fixture in East London's vibrant art scene. Located next to the renowned century-old flower market, the gallery has carved out a niche in providing affordable artwork, primarily focusing on up-and-coming artists from both the local area and Cornwall.

We are excited to welcome Columbia Road Gallery to the LA Art Show for the first time in 2025. For this debut appearance, the gallery will present works by four notable artists:

Kate Boxer, Thomas Gosebruch, Hannah Ludnow, and Jonathan Schofield. This selection promises to give visitors a taste of the gallery's eclectic roster and its dedication to promoting emerging talent on an international stage.

Casterline|Goodman Gallery, Aspen, Colorado

We are pleased to welcome Casterline|Goodman Gallery to the LA Art Show in 2025. Based in the heart of Aspen, Colorado, the gallery offers fine art and expert advisory services, blending experience in both primary and secondary art markets. Founded by Robert Casterline and Jordan Goodman, the gallery benefits from Casterline's over two decades of art investment expertise and Goodman's background in contemporary furniture design and architecture.

For next February's LA Art Show, Casterline|Goodman Gallery will showcase the works of Daniel Yocum (b. 1994). This American artist, influenced by the New York School, has gained recognition for his unique approach to figurative abstract expressionism, infused with hip-hop aesthetics. Yocum's distinctive style, characterized by vivid colors and lurking marks of black, often incorporates imagery of cars and flowers. His work continues to reflect influences from artists such as Phillip Guston, Cy Twombly, Robert Crumb, and Andy Warhol.

Coral Contemporary Gallery, Miami

Founded in 2018 by Isabel Tassara, Coral Contemporary Gallery has quickly established itself as a significant presence in Miami's vibrant Midtown art scene. Specializing in contemporary visual art from Latin America, the gallery represents a diverse roster of young and mid-career artists, while also incorporating works from renowned, established creators.

For the LA Art Show 2025, Coral Contemporary will showcase works by four notable artists: Chiara Baccanelli, Andres Paredes, Lucas Pertile, and Roberto Vivo. This selection promises to offer visitors a compelling glimpse into the diversity and vibrancy of contemporary Latin American art.
